Show me evidence of one instance where a well-known dogman culled a manbiter that was a winning pitdog or producer, or even showed potential in either area. There is no evidence to suggest such dogs were regularly culled, however, there is ample evidence to suggest the contrary:

Gr. Ch. Gambler's Virgil - while in a rage, tried to bite the Gambler, and actually tore the shirt off of Gambler's back as he tried to get away from him. Gambler thought very seriously about putting the dog down, but instead decided to roll him. Evidently he liked what he saw and by the tender age of just over 18 months, Virgil became a 1X winner.

Adams' Gr. Ch. Zebo ROM - attacked Mr. Adams' son and nearly took his son's ear off. After the request of Mr. Adams' wife, Zebo was sold again, this time to Mr. Johnson who fought him twice more.

Loposay's Buster ROM - The late Barney Fife and his brother, Matt, went traveling through North Carolina to visit Mrs. Loposay and then go to the Fork Farm, to see Mr. Grady Cummings. Upon arrival to Mrs. Loposay's, they were able to see the great producer Buster, who made an attempt to bite both of them.

Stepp's Gr. Ch. Angus - his only downfall was he was a man-biter, such as many of the best-to-be were ie; Gr Ch Art (ROM), Gr Ch Zebo (ROM), Dbl Gr Ch Tornado, Ch Honeybunch (ROM), and Ch Yellow John (ROM) just to name a few...

Indian Bolio ROM - would scream with rage until he was released into the other dog. Occasionally, he would bite you if not released quick enough.

...and Bullyson

...and Chinaman

...and so on.

Earl Tudor's wife was bitten so many times by Earl's dogs that her legs were covered in scars. When the issue was raised regarding the temperament of the Tudor dogs, Earl replied, "If you're dumb enough to get bit by one of my dogs, that's your fault!"

An uncle of mine was farmed some brood dogs by David Tant. One day my uncle went to take one of these dogs outside the house when it "chewed him from wrist to elbow." Tant refused to do anything about it. My uncle wanted to return the dog, but Tant told him that if he returned that one, he would have to return the others as well. Since the dogs carried a high value in both the pit and brood pen, they stayed where they were. The idea of culling was, in Tant's words, "out of the question." Upon visiting Tant's yard, one would find that many of his dogs would either try to hide from you, or try to eat you.

Here is a match report from the 70's; note the 4th:

CARL BEASLEY'S 4 MATCH SHOW

1st Match C. Beasley vs J. Jennings M32 Ref. B. Smith
Both dogs over the weight. Don Maloney handling for Beasley the 2 x winner from Maurice Carver LITTLE MAN. Jennings's BLACK HEART a black . Both like the nose but LITTLE MAN is doing the damage. Jennings asks Maloney to scratch to win, he does.
Winner: Don Maloney and Beasley's LITTLE MAN

2nd Match D. McClure vs D. Mayo M CW Ref. B. Smith
James Kelley conditioned McClure's PUNK, Mike Kelley doing the handling. Mayo's CANNON a buckakin. These big dogs go at it like small dogs, you could hardly stay out of their way. CANNON turns at 10 and scratches. One more scratch by each dog and PUNK takes the wide swing and is counted out a few feet away from his opponent in 17 minutes.
Winner: Mayo's CANNON.

3rd Match D. Mayo vs J. Jennings M36 Ref. B. Carr
Jennings's DIRTY ERNIE said to be a very hard biter, it wasn't said wr ng. For the first 15 minutes it looked like he was going to eat Mayo's black. He let up a little and the black came back some but it was all over in 1 hour 39 minutes.
Winner: Jennings' DIRTY ERNIE.

4th Match C. Beasley vs Starsky & Hutch M65 Ref. B. Clouse
Beasley's red and white handled by Joe Alvarado. Hutch handling a black. At the scales, while weighing the red and white, who is a bad man-eater, Alvarado lost control of the dog and he headed right for Earl Maloney and bit him in the chest. Bill Carr kicked him loose and was bitten himself, very bad. Just above the rib cage. That big crazy dog then headed for the crowd with his mouth wide open. Some one could have been seriously hurt if Bill Carr hadn't intercepted him again, this time getting bit on the leg, through his boot. They finally got the dog under control and the match was on. Alvarado got fouled out for some bad handling in his corner and the Winner: Starsky & Hutch's black dog.

 Man Eaters Gary J. Hammonds (Pit Bull Gazette, May 1982)

Trough the years, the „Man Biters,, have been of special interest to me since, in theory, most are not supposed to be game. Simple observation tells me there are as many game man biters(percentage wise) as there are game dogs in the Pit Bull family. Most of the old-timers felt the man biters should be destroyed and most defenitely never used in a breeding program. I believe a deeper look into these dogs to be a worthwhile projekt. Through my research and observation, I have concluded that there are several types of man biters, each of wich deserves recognition and comment. The most acceptable of the man biters are those that are both protective and territorial. Most bulldogs have this trait to varying degrees and the beauty of it is that it can be encouraged or discouraged depending on the needs of the owner. These dogs are usually the more intelligent bulldogs and while they are generally gentle with people, will become a terror to the suspicious intruder and literally inhale a direct threat to its master or his property. The second most acceptable man biter is the territorial junk yard dog. This dog gladly accepts its owners but all others are not welcome in its domain. Off his own property, he is not nearly so aggressive except when challenged directly. These dogs are not for the novice but can be kept and are definitely a deterrent to dog thieves and various riffraff. The last acceptable type is the junk yard dog that will bite anyone anytime, just for the fun of it. Many of these dogs actually have to have their feed chucked to them even by their owners. These dogs are for the professional only, and most are probably good candidates for execution. There is also the excitable dog that will bite you to get loose and get another dog, cat, horse or whatever. These dogs are defenitely not for the amateur and should be kept from these types of situations as much as possible. Bullyson, Andersons CH Spade and Mesquite Sam were dogs of this type. To me the most dangerous is the latent man biter that just goes bad without provocation. These dogs should always be destroyed as their unpredictability makes them an extremely lethal commodity. This recessive tendency surfaces in other breeds so why should the Pit Bull be any differend? The percentage of malicious man biters in the Pit Bull family is extremely low. I believe that through the use of proper breeding methods we can even lower this. Most of the attacks that are given so much „news media,, coverage are generally made by dogs of no breeding. Check the records---in most cases where a bulldog mauls or kills someone, they are dogs that were bred by the amateur breeder and usually backed by several generations of scatter-bred individuals, most of wich are equally bred badly. So in many cases the breeder is at fault and in all but a few instances, human error enters into the mishap. There is much to be said about the man biters but for the sake of good judgement, everyone who owns one, just like all Pit Bull owners, should be very conscientious. Just one case of carelessness could mean a law against the breed in your area and turn puplic support from ouer dogs. That is exactly what we do not need at this point in time. Man biters--keep one if you must, but take care if you do.

Yes The Percentage Of Biters Is Very Low...but I Think We Should Make It Much Lower By Culling Any Bulldog That Has These Biting Tendencies.

"Back In The Ole Bulldog Days These Manbiters Were Eliminated Immediately."

I hear this over and over again, so let me just ask who, specifically, ever culled a game "man-biter" back in "The Ole Bulldog Days?"

Earl T never minded feeding man-biters, even though his wife's legs were covered with bite scars. Some of Tant's dogs would just as soon eat you as look at you. I understand Burns' dogs were even worse.

I'd like to see someone step foot on V Jackson's yard if he wasn't around.

Carver kept his share of "man-biters," as did many many other famed dogmen.

In most cases, if a dog was good enough to win, it was good enough to live, regardless of who it wanted to have for dinner.

If I had to cull every dog that bit me for one reason or another, I'd probably just give up and become a goldfish fancier. I dunno...maybe I just taste better than y'all 😊

I say we add up the collective bite scars of the members of this site, divide that by the total of dogs we've all culled for being "manbiters," and see what number we come up with.

Ya know why you never hear about gamedogs maiming children? It's because gamedoggers tend to be responsible folks. If you own gamedogs for very long, you either learn to correct your inefficiencies as a dog owner, or you give up altogether and buy a cat.

I'm not defending "man-biters." I'm not about that at all. However, I am fully opposed to the notion that gamedogs are above the territorial and protective instincts shared by 100% of all other domestic canine breeds. It's a concept that is far more dangerous than that of allowing a human-aggressive dog to exist if responsibly contained. A "Pit Bull" is a dog first and foremost...

...and dogs will be dogs.

Some dogs can be recognized by titles they earn such as champion, grand champion and register of merit, Angus is recognized by the title of "Champion of Champions".

Angus' sire was a dog named Willie Brown's Nigger, who was a two time winner, sired by Clayton's Eli, Jr. bred to his mother, Boudreaux' Spook. Angus' dam, O. Stevens' Heidi, was bred by A. Steinberg from Sly Fox to Red Pepper (Ed Ritcheson blood) and was a litter mate to Ch. Prince. She was originally owned by O. Stevens' and matched once at twenty nine and a half pounds. She demonstrated the frustrating style of hanging on the bottom jaw and discouraging her opponent until Ziggy M. and Tony M. conceded the match in an hour. Ozzie then traded her to Big Brad and Keummerling, because he didn't have any use for her, as far as breeding. The bitch she was traded for was a cold gyp, at the time, named Geraldine.

Big Brad tested Angus and because of the fact that Big Brad had numerous winners already on his yard, he sold Angus to Billy Stepp as a game dog. Angus then went on to shake up the dog world by defeating Rixey's Coal Cat, Jay's Buster, Crenshaw's Ch. Otis, Keummerling's Ch. Freddie (brother to O. Stevens' Ch. Homer), Garza's Heman and Love's Tiger, all of which were great dogs. Angus was then hooked into, the then 3X winner, Ch. Jeep as a rematch for the victory over Stinson and Stepp's Ch. Black Glover. During the keep, Angus was involved in an accidental kennel fight with Ch. Ruby and was wrecked in the chest area, thus forcing Stepp to pay the forfeit to J. Crenshaw. After Angus healed from this incident, they hooked up with Crenshaw to try the Angus / Jeep match again. Unfortunately, Angus got loose once again and ran straight into Ruby. By the time Stepp got there, the damage was already done, because so much money was riding on this match, Stepp and Co. asked O. Stevens if they could borrow, the 4X winner, Ch. Homer as a replacement so as not to lose another forfeit. Which is how one of the greatest matches of all time came about, Crenshaw's Ch. Jeep VS Stevens' Ch. Homer.

Angus wasn't bred many times, but in his few breedings he sired good dogs such as Diaz' Ch. Mac, out of Torres' George. When bred to Stepp's Ch. Ruby, he produced Broadway Jack's Gee Whiz, Super Gnat's Guess (2X winner), Super Gnat's Ch. Butch, Suzy, and the 7X winner Racehorse. Also, there was Solo's Cobra, Big Brad's Loco, Patience, and Tara, Texas Ron's Major, Frankie, Sassy, Evil (who lost to O. Stevens' Ch. Zero), and Ralph's Prince (who was picked up at 1:57).

He was the sort of dog that would overcome, and adapt to any style that was put before him as his record shows. In competitions, he defeated many whom went on to become foundation stock for other breeding programs. From all accounts told he possessed smarts, mouth, ability, gameness (reason he was sold by Big Brad), structure, his only downfall was he was a man-biter, such as many of the best-to-be were ie; Gr Ch Art (ROM), Gr Ch Zebo (ROM), Dbl Gr Ch Tornado, Ch Honeybunch (ROM), and Ch Yellow John (ROM) just to name a few with very similar qualities.

Nothing 1st hand from me but if "The Complete Game Dog" is correct Zebo was an absolute nutt. Game,ACE, and a man-biter. According to Mountain Man he bit or tried to bite everyone who ever owned him including himself. LOL!

I'll begin the true story of the dog named "Zebo" by going straight to his most famous match. This match was against a dog called Yuebank's "Champion Greaser". In this match Zebo went uphill almost four pounds and won in one hour and fifty seven minutes. Greaser was renounced to be "unbeatable" at 44 pounds.

"That black dog is a cur!" came the yell from the top of the stands. The noise in the barn dropped so quickly it was scary. It got so quiet the sound of the dogs feet scraping on the tarp could be heard, as every eye in the barn looked up to see who had labeled a dog that had never turned or hesitated in his life a "cur". I thought big trouble lay only seconds away, as a slur like that cannot be ignored. The "Black Dog's" handler looked up to the top row where the voice had come from and said, "I don't appreciate you calling my dog a cur!" The words, though soft spoken, carried a message of seriousness, and then the handler's wife said, "After this match is over, you climb in the pit with my husband and we'll see who's the cur." This happened during one of the best matches and biggest upsets I've seen since I started in the sport. Both sides thought they
